Dr. DeMarco and Mr. Maine

Bethel Chiropractor Dr. Joseph DeMarco recently won the Mr. Maine title, light-weight division, and this past weekend he captured second place at the Mr. New England body-building meet in Boston. DeMarco, shown right at an earlier competition, took up body building in 1986, after competing in the gymnastics program at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Before taking the Mr. Maine title, DeMarco had not competed since 1990, when he won the Mr. Iowa/Illinois title. By taking the Mr. Maine title, DeMarco qualified for the National Physique Committee's Mr. Jr. U.S.A. competition in Denver, Colo. He and his fiance, Lori Perry, will leave for Denver Thursday. The amateur body-building competition will be held Friday and Saturday and telecast on ESPN, he said. "My goal is to just get in the top five," DeMarco said. "This is the top amateur competition in the country, but it's not drug tested and there's a lot of steroid use. I don't use any drugs and it would be quite an accomplishment just to get in the top five." To prepare for the competitions, DeMarco has been training two and a half hours a day at a gym in Rumford, and he has been on a low-fat, no-salt diet for 17 weeks--losing 20 pounds in the process. He plans to drop the diet as soon as the competitions are over. "I just can't take it any more," he said.

Tight school dollars force some tough local changes:

School budget draft: staff cuts, tax hikes

By WENDY HANSCOM

Superintendent of School Dwayne Craig presented the SAD 44 school board Monday night with a proposed $5,989,179 budget for FY '94--a $22,379 increase over the FY '93 budget.

Because of anticipated cut backs in state funding, it is likely that local taxpayers will be asked to come up with considerably more than the minimal $22,279.

The FY '94 budget includes $85,000 for the local share of the Crescent Park School addition project, which was not in last year's budget.

In order to offset funding cut backs and uncontrollable increases in the spending, such as insurance costs, fuel and teacher's salaries, Craig has proposed a number of budget cuts, including:

- Consolidating the Andover and Woodstock School principalships from one full-time administrator and one part-time administrator, to one part-time (4/5ths) principalship.
- Eliminating one Telstar Middle School English teacher.
- Replacing the Telstar librarian with a library education technician.
- Replacing the Telstar music teacher with a contracted music teacher.
- Eliminating Telstar's vocational business program, which would delete 3/7ths of a teaching position.
- Eliminating Telstar's vocational graphic arts program, which would delete 2/7ths of a teaching position.
- Reducing 4/7ths of a Telstar High School math teaching position.
- Hiring a part-time Telstar High School history teacher, instead of a full-time teacher.
- Eliminating four elementary school teaching positions. (Cuts coming out of the general fund, special education and Chapter I.)

- Setting aside no money for the district's special education placement reserve account.

- Reductions in substitutes' salaries, supplies, textbooks, equipment, transportation and repair and maintenance of schools.

Craig said he found cutting personnel and programs a painful personal experience, but a necessary one if the budget was to come in close to last year's figure.

"What I'm giving you here is a skeleton on a respirator," Craig said. "I had to do a lot of things I did not want to do. Although staffing needs, budget requests and wish lists were all taken into consideration, the decision was mine--not the popular belief that everybody got what they wanted."

The board has ultimate authority over what programs and personnel will be cut before the FY '94 budget goes to district-wide vote.

It is likely that board members will debate and tinker with the budget at several meetings over the next month or so. Monday night the board tabled a proposal to name current Andover School Principal Charles Plummer to the combined principalship of AES and WES, so that the proposal could be discussed further.

The district-wide budget vote has been tentatively scheduled for May 27.

The board will begin preliminary discussion of Craig's budget proposal at a special board meeting Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in the Telstar library.

Board Chairman Margaret Hand said the public is welcome to attend, but the meeting is for board member discussion only. District residents will not be allowed to comment. Hand said public comment will be taken at future public hearings on the budget proposal.

Greenstock parents protest WES shifts

By WENDY HANSCOM

Approximately 80 Woodstock Elementary School parents and other school supporters turned out at Monday's SAD 44 board meeting to protest the transfer of three of the school's teachers to the Crescent Park School in Bethel.

Woodstock and Greenwood parents held an organizational meeting last week to come up with a protest strategy before Monday night's board meeting.

Unofficial parent group leader Elton Cole of Woodstock said the group is circulating a petition regarding the staff changes. They plan to continue to hound superintendent Dwayne Craig and the school board about the changes and may keep their children home from school a day in protest.

If the staff changes are not reversed, they also plan to plead their case to Ronald Jenkins when he replaces Craig on July 1.

The staffing shifts would place WES kindergarten teacher Robin Smith, third-grade teacher Jacqueline Morin and fourth-grade teacher Jolene Shimamura at CPS.

CPS first-grade teacher Sheila

Otero and fifth-grade teacher Mary Newcomb would transfer to WES.

Craig's FY '94 budget proposal also calls for eliminating the full-time WES principal position currently held by Frank Boynton. Craig's proposal calls for a part-time principal covering both the Andover Elementary School and WES next year.

At Monday's board meeting, the parent group argued that the staffing changes were unnecessary, against two of the teachers' wishes and were an attempt by CPS principal David Murphy to cluster the district's best teachers at CPS.

Craig, however, said the staffing changes were made in response to budget constraints and teachers indicating what grade levels they wished to teach next year.

"We don't see how you can make these changes in a school that's running so smoothly," said Rick Savage of Woodstock. "We will miss the administrator we have now, but what's more important is the loss of the full-time position."

"I have Jolene's (Shimamura) permission to express emphatically that she is opposed to the move," Elton Cole said. "Jolene has been known to give more of herself than anyone could expect. What we are about to lose we will never get back."

Woodstock parent James Miclon also urged Craig to reconsider moving Shimamura and Morin to CPS.

"I want to make it very clear that we also have respect for the other teachers at our school," Miclon said, "but I ask Mr. Craig to reconsider moving Jolene and Jackie."

MCS enduring rocky transition period

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Maine Conservation School on Bryant Pond is going through a difficult transition period as it attempts to adjust to the loss of state funding for its executive director position, and to mount a capital campaign to address long-deferred problems with its physical plant.

Supporters hope that increased volunteerism and fund-raising efforts will carry the school over the tough times and on to a new level of activity in the future, perhaps even to year-round operation.

But the past few months "have been a rocky stretch," acknowledged board of directors' chairman Steve Wight.

The school has hired a seasonal programs coordinator to cover some of the executive director's former responsibilities, but it has also lost its first major client of the season--45 children from the Skowhegan Middle School who were due to spend three weeks at the school.

The Skowhegan program was canceled over uncertainty about the conservation school's ability to adequately staff the program, according to Development Director Chitanya York. The pullout will cost the school approximately $10,000, roughly a tenth of its annual income from such programs, York said.

Mission "misdirected"?

The school's increased emphasis on fundraising has been criticized by outgoing executive director Leslie "Buzz" Gamble, whose position is slated for elimination as of July 1 in the latest budget proposal from the state Department of Education. Gamble joined the school in 1987 and is the only state employee on the payroll.

Gamble said he worries that in its preoccupation with raising money the board of directors risks losing track of the school's basic mission--environmental education. "The mission is being misdirected in order to raise funds," he said. "It's been a cult of money, money, money over the past year."

He also criticized the shift to a more traditional fin, fur and logging ethic. "We can work and spend a lot of time getting canoes and rifles, but not microscopes," he said.

Wight acknowledged that the school's programs are being reshaped to reflect the philosophy of the private sector sponsors the school is now cultivating--namely, to include an increased emphasis on "sustainability."

"The mission statement won't change, but always room for dif-

Elton Cole said that WES has had 15 staffing changes in the past three years, which amount to an 88 percent turnover in staff, while AES has had a 45 percent turnover and CPS a 38 percent turnover during the same period.

"We feel we are being subjected to more than our fair share of staffing changes," he said. "We need to ask for stability in our school."

Cole went on to say CPS Principal Murphy may be behind some of the staffing changes.

"We do not believe the relocation of our teachers is a budget related matter," Cole said. "Although it may be coincidental, it is difficult to overlook the fact that with the proposed relocation of our three teachers next year, Mr. Murphy will have at Crescent Park six of eight teachers still remaining in the district that taught with him at the time he left the Woodstock School. We cannot discredit anyone for wishing to staff a facility with finest educators available. However, we do not feel it should come at our expense."

Principal Murphy said after Monday meeting that he has made no attempt to hand pick his staff.

"This was all Dewaine's process," Murphy said. "I had no more input than any other administrator would."

Craig agreed that he is solely responsible for the management of district staff once they are hired by the school board, including who will teach at various schools.

Craig told the directors Monday night that along with budget considerations his recommendations were based on the statement of intent filed by teachers in February.

He said Shimamura indicated she would like to change to second- or first-grade, without Reading Recovery, and Morin expressed an interest in teaching second-grade. Both requests could only be filled at CPS, he said.

Craig will meet with WES staff this week to discuss the staff moves, he said, but he gave no indication whether or not the changes might be rescinded or left in place.

WES principal Frank Boynton said after Monday's meeting that he appreciates the support he has received from the Woodstock School parents.

"I'm very please with the parent support," Boynton said. "It has been a great experience working with the parents and staff at the school, but I have to realize in my own mind the financial constraints the district is under. I would like to say I've been treated very fairly all along."

ferent emphasis, Wight said. "The change is toward greater emphasis on man in the environment, and, frankly, that's one of the reasons we're supported by virtually every paper company."

"Woods Products Council is really interested in supporting anybody who will talk about sustainability."

"I see the private sector stepping up to the plate--youngsters and environmental education are hot topics right now."

Wight said the school was also extending its fundraising efforts to other groups, including sportsmen's clubs, whose view of the environment might be somewhat at odds with the view associated with the school. "They want deer to shoot, I want deer to look at, but these folks are our market," he said.

"These are people who don't feel in the right social position to send their kids to Chewonki," Wight said, referring to the upscale environmental school in Wiscasset.

The fundraising efforts have born fruit, Wight said. Since the school hired York as development director two years ago, fundraising has increased from "$300 to $400 dollars a year to more like $100,000."

But Gamble characterized the fundraising numbers as largely "smoke and mirrors stuff," and he said that the school, in its eagerness to please would-be donors, is regressing to an outdated view of environmental education, a view that focuses narrowly on conservation education--"what you can dig, shot, put a hook in or cut down."

Board member Richard Duplessis, who has been associated with the school for more than 20 years as a student, instructor and director, said he shares Gamble's uneasiness with some of the changes now taking place.

"We need to go back and refocus on our original mission," he said. "I'd like to see us get back to our roots, with a good solid summer curriculum."

As a practical example of the drift from its original charter, Duplessis noted that logging had been allowed on the school property two or three years ago--despite the fact that the original, 1955 deed to the property, from Lillian Waterhouse, stipulates that "there shall never be any commercial cutting of wood therefrom."

(Wight said that he didn't know of Waterhouse's stipulation regarding cutting wood, but he was comfortable with the decision to log the property. "When the crop is ready to be harvested, you harvest it," he said.)

Board says change needed

Wight praised Gamble's work at the school but defended the changes as necessary to the long-term survival of the institution.

In a letter to Gamble following the decision by the MCS board not to attempt to privately fund Gamble's position, and to have York take over his duties immediately as executive director, Wight wrote: "We recognize that you have essentially been the Maine Conservation School for the past six years. You have brought the school from a closely held place where employees were warned not to fraternize with the locals to an institution of which the Town of Woodstock, the local school district, and the state can be proud. As Chitanya has often said, anyone following you in the leadership of the school will be standing on your shoulders."

But Wight said later that the present board felt the school had to shift to a higher level of activity if it were to survive. "The board felt that level was not sufficient to keep going and pay the bills and fix the plant. The school had to make changes or we'd go out of business."

A large part of the school's financial dilemma involves the condition of its physical plant, which, Wight said, "has had no real maintenance in 20 years."

"The board decided two years ago we had to take care of physical plant," he said, and undertook a capital campaign to support the repairs and improvements.

York said the nominal goal of the campaign is $100,000, but the board hopes to be able to raise $200,000.

Ill feelings

Wight acknowledged that the transition period had been less than amicable, in part because of personality clashes between Gamble and York.

"The two of them were working on different agendas," Wight said. "Chitanya to raise money and improve the school; Buzz to keep things going at the present level."

York's background includes being the funding director of the Common Ground Country Fair and having been the director of the Division of Resource Management, Maine Department of Agriculture.

He was also serving as vice president of the MCS board when he was hired two years ago as development director for the school.

He was hired, Wight said, "in part to make things happen that were uncomfortable for Buzz--but we didn't realize how uncomfortable."

Gamble readily acknowledged the personality conflicts, but also cited poor communication on the part of the board and York.

"When I have to plead to see a grant that's going out for a program that I'm going to have to run, then something's wrong," he said. "The decision making has become a completely closed process."

The situation deteriorated following the board's decision in March to have York function as executive director and for Gamble to act until June 30 as a consultant.

"If that's what was decided as the best course for school, then I'm all for it," Gamble said, "but they need a more coherent plan than they seem to have."

Gamble subsequently announced he would be taking three weeks vacation in April, the traditional start-up time for school programs.

And he criticized the board for failing to attend to the necessary details of getting the school up and running--including doing the preparatory work for the Skowhegan program.

"They relieve me my authority and responsibility," he said, "but then they expect me to stay here and bail them out until June 30--and then roll over dead."

Gamble, who lives in Bethel with his wife, Linda, and their two children, said he is currently looking at positions in Maine and beyond.

HANDGUN SAFETY COURSE

National Rifle Association instructor Don Feeney of Bethel will teach a three-week NRA "Personal Safety" course beginning next week.

The course will teach the safe handling and firing of handguns, with an emphasis on avoiding violent confrontations.

Attorney Michael O'Donnell of Bethel will also instruct participants on the laws dealing with fire arms in general.

Weekend range practice will be scheduled. The course will also feature several video presentations.

Anyone under 18-years-old must be pre-approved by the instructor and accompanied by an adult.

Classes will be held May 6, 13, and 20 at 6:30 p.m. at the Bethel Legion Hall. Sessions will be open-ended, but will probably average three hours a night, according to Feeney.

The course is sponsored by the Mundt-Allen #81 American Legion Post in Bethel. The post may sponsor more NRA courses if public interest in all types of gun safety and handling is high.

For more information about the NRA "Personal Safety" course and other NRA courses call Feeney at 824-2475.

Teen charged following dirt bike accident

By JOHN VINCENT

A Bethel teen-ager was charged with driving under the influence and eluding police after a chase Sunday down Route 26 led to an accident at the intersection of Sunset Drive and Middle Intervale Road, according to Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman.

Jeremiah M. Mills, 18, of Main Street, Bethel, was taken by Bethel Rescue to Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway, where he was treated and released, Bellman said.

Upon Mills' release from the hospital he was arrested and charged with driving an all-terrain vehicle under the influence of an intoxicant, eluding an officer, driving an all-terrain vehicle to endanger, driving an unregistered all-terrain vehicle, driving an all-terrain vehicle on a public way and driving an all-terrain vehicle with inadequate lights, Bellman said.

A caller's complaint of dirt bikes being driven on East Bethel Road led Patrolman Darren Tripp to the scene at about 7 p.m. Sunday, Bellman said Monday.

"When he went out there to check it out, they were, as usual, gone," Bellman said.

"He ended up locating a dirt bike on Route 26 near Blake Hill."

He said Tripp signaled the man on the dirt bike to pull over, but he did not.

"He had everything going--the lights, the siren--but he went on and took a right on Sunset Drive. The operator of the motorcycle lost control of it at the intersection of Sunset Drive and the Middle Intervale Road," Bellman said.

The chief said the bike slid on some sand in the intersection that had accumulated over the winter, causing the accident.

"Sometimes it can be as bad as black ice," Bellman said.

Off-road motorcycles are not permitted on public roads unless they are registered and insured like a car. According to Bellman, the bikers involved in Sunday's incident had not asked permission of the residents to ride over their land as they should.

"They're supposed to stop and identify themselves," Bellman said, adding that police will respond to complaints "if we know kids are riding on people's property and they don't want them there."

Rebel girls' bats, arms are ready

By WENDY HANSCOM

You can tell it's spring. The mud is deep, the rain seems never-ending, and Coach Jim Lunney is predicting another winning season of Telstar High School softball.

The Rebel girls have been thrilling fans with outstanding performances for the past 11 years and coach Lunney said he expects this year's team will be in the State Class C playoffs for the 12th year in a row.

Two years ago Telstar won the Class C state championships. Last year the Rebels were eliminated in the playoff semifinal by the ultimate state champs, Madison.

This year, Lunney said, competition in the Mountain Valley Conference and in Class C will be tough, as always, but his team should be up to the challenge.

"These kids play well together," he said. "We should do well this season."

Wet weather has canceled some of the team's scrimmage matches and the Telstar fields still too wet to play on, so playing time has been sporadic.

"Because of the late spring, we'll have to build as we go," Lunney said, "but everybody will be in the same boat."

Rain and a wet field postponed the Rebel's season opener against Carrabec until Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. Another home game is scheduled for this afternoon (Wednesday). Rebel fans can call the school to check on the game's location.

Hot hurler, solid batters

Lunney said he's not sure yet what positions everyone will play this year. Four graduates, former third baseman Shilo Hutchins, shortstop Jen Bailey, center fielder Amy Hannon and second baseman Dawn Davis, have left some defensive holes.

"Our pitcher, catcher and first baseman are the only people who played those positions last year," Lunney said. "We've got six players in new positions."

Rebel pitching will be led by senior Stacie Kangas.

Kangas, a three-year MVC all-star and two-year all-state player, is better than ever this year, according to Lunney.

"Pitching is our strength," he said. "Stacie looks good. She's stronger." Sophomore Angie Lovejoy will relieve Kangas.

Senior MVC all-star catcher Danielle Bernier will probably catch Kangas this season. Lunney also has sophomores Amy Patten and Sarah Boynton trying out behind the plate. Bernier may play infield if Patten or Boynton can handle catching duties.

"I wouldn't be surprised if Dani is stuck there," Lunney said. "But she's an outstanding player in other positions too."

Senior letterman Pam Bennett will be taking first base again this year. "Pam looks good this spring," the coach said. "She's hitting the ball hard and as good as anyone."

Junior Misty Hutchins and Senior Faye Luxton are vying for starting position on second. Neither girl started last year, but both lettered.

Senior Noelle Gauthier will probably come in from right field and play shortstop.

Locke Mills

By CRYSTAL LAKE

Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett and son Jason from Northfield, Vt. visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bennett for the weekend recently.

On Saturday, April 17, the 80th birthday of Donald W. Bennett was celebrated with a surprise family gathering at the Country Way Restaurant in So. Paris. Sixteen relatives enjoyed dinner and a social time planned by their sons, James Bennett of Northfield, Vt. and Dr. Dean Bennett of Mt. Vernon.

Charlotte Cole, Helen Chase and Vera Cross took the dinner and helped Dora Ford celebrate her 85th birthday on Saturday, April 17. They enjoyed playing cards in the afternoon.

Charlotte Cole and Helen Chase attended a tea at Ledgerview Memorial Nursing Home on Tuesday, April 20. Charlotte received a certificate and a red rose in appreciation for her playing and singing for the patients. They also called on Anne Troy and Becky Ricks the same day.

The Ladies Circle met on Wednesday, April 21 for the first meeting since Christmas. We are sad that we have lost another loyal member, Edna Cole. A special devotion was read in her memory and also for John Mills. There were nine members present. Charlotte Cole and Helen Chase furnished the refreshments.

Funeral services were held for John Mills on Monday, April 19, at the Praise Assembly of God in Rumford Center. John had been a member there for seven years with his wife Lorraine. About 95 friends and relatives were present at the funeral. Directly following the funeral there was a gathering at the Locke Mills Town Hall, where many friends and relatives enjoyed fellowship and plenty of good food. I want to thank the Greenwood Fire Auxiliary, Ann Roy and others who made this time pleasant.

On Monday, May 3, Caroline Merrill will become the new Postmaster of the Locke Mills Post Office. Let's welcome her into our town. Crystal Lake and Donna Curtis will continue to be the reliefs.

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

The Historical Society gives us accurate pictures of past events. Larry Whitman gave a few paper items to the Historical Society.

The officers and members of the Historical Society do their part for the community.

Esther Davis was in Lewiston for a check-up on April 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews spent Tuesday with their Aunt Olive Davis.

Olive Davis had an appointment with Dr. Reis on Wednesday. Richard Felt took her to Norway. She was able to replenish her larder, also. We had dinner when we returned home.

The wild animals are roaming now. A moose was killed up toward Bryant Pond recently. A bear was seen up that way this week. Woodchucks are around my shed; they are waiting for the clover to grow so they can fill up their stomachs. Squirrels are still around.

Richard Felt and daughter Sharon visited a nursing home in Norway this week.

Richard has been playing with his orchestra in many places, the granges and dance halls all over, etc. He was out every night last week.

He is to be at Bethel at Gould Academy's Bingham Hall on May 2 with his orchestra. "Joe" Yates is taking part in this show as speaker, also.

Larry A. Billings, Curator of the Historical Society, says he has given the Society three prints by famous painters. The Historical Museum has a nice collection of art now.

I returned home Saturday afternoon after spending the last three weeks with the Bean-Turner family in Otisfield. Jonathan finally has his cast off and is now learning to navigate on crutches.

How To Control Workers' Compensation Costs

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

Workers' compensation claims arise from job-related injuries and any resulting disabilities. If you pay the premiums, you know just how expensive workers' compensation has become. If you are willing to take an active role, implementing the following steps can reduce your company's workers' compensation premiums.

Eliminate work-related injuries. Review your company's work environment and determine the causes and recurring patterns of injuries. Often, you can change work habits or improve working conditions to eliminate many injuries. For instance, rubberized, non-slip floor pads can help eliminate injuries caused by slippery floors.

Another key to eliminating injuries is communication with employees. Your employees should know what activities are hazardous and why. Conduct safety training programs for both new hires and experienced employees. Consider rewarding management and employees for working safely.

Once an injury has occurred, the employee should be immediately taken to a doctor. The sooner an employee receives quality medical care, the less likely the employee's injuries will require extended medical treatment.

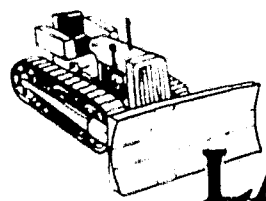

Early return to work also helps to reduce the cost of workers' compensation. Your company should strive to assign light-duty work to an injury victim. Such work could include clerical, sales, or other nonphysical tasks. Get the employee back to work and make the employee a valuable and functional member of the company. Some medical studies have shown that early return to work generally reduces the total recovery period of injury victims.

Implementing the above suggestions should help you to reduce the number and severity of work-related injuries and reduce injury recovery time. Reducing the overall costs of employee's injuries will eventually reduce your company's workers' compensation premiums.

It will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the East Stoneham Congregational Church. Walkers will walk to the North Waterford Church and return to Stoneham Church for lunch. Those walking are asked to bring a sandwich and a can of soup. Money raised will provide food and relief supplies and refugee assistance.

We watched this program on television and saw an awful lot of spills, but Dale and Kitty didn't tip over, even over the six-mile falls. The air temp. was 54 and water was 37. They were serving hot coffee and hot chili, etc., at the finish line, which I expect was much appreciated.

As you all might expect, our home bodies have been on the go this past week again. Spring has sprung and there is always something to do.

Tuesday morning, Peggy went downtown to get her hair trimmed. I worked outside some. Uncovered my bluebird nest boxes as bluebirds have been seen in some places, but not here yet. Tuesday afternoon, Peggy made a casserole and we attended Oxford Pomona Grange, which was hosted by Franklin Grange of Bryant Pond. This was to be Degree Night and Bertha Benoit went along with us so as to sing in the degree work. Being Master of Pomona, it was my duty to see to the degree work and five of my regular Pomona degree staff were unable to be present, so there had to be many substitutes, but they all did very well. Our Pomona work was inspected at this meeting by Dorothy Brown, Lecturer of the Maine State Grange and Russell Brown, Steward of the Maine State Grange.

Once again, I want to remind you of the FOOD, CRAFT and WHAT-NOT SALE to be held at West Paris Grange Hall on May 1 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tables are available for $2 each. For more information, call Kathleen Holden at 674-2975.

There will also be a dance with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra at West Paris Grange Hall on May 1, with dancing from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Hope Lovejoy, with about 90 other eighth-graders, enjoyed a field trip to Boston recently, where they had a chance to observe Boston Harbor and many other historical sights. They will be leaving on Tuesday for a trip to New York City for the rest of the week.

Saturday, Mary Lovejoy visited Bertha Benoit. Yesterday, Bertha was driving her truck for the first time since breaking her hip. She visited her grandmother at the nursing home, then called on Mary Lovejoy, also Carl and Lettie Brooks. We'll only hear her horn and see her dust from now on.

Yesterday, Mark Dunn attended a birthday party for Ryan Dillingham in town.

The new Grange paper, "The Maine Granger," lists Past Masters' Night at West Paris Grange to be on May 6. This is a misprint. Past Masters' night at West Paris Grange will be May 20 with a supper. There will be no supper May 6.

On May 4, Oxford Pomona Grange will meet at Bear Mountain Grange in South Waterford. There will be a potluck supper preceding the meeting. We hope that some will take casseroles or salads to help out. Thank you, one and all.

BRIDGE RESULTS

The final round and awards banquet of the Cynthia Mason Round Robin Bridge Tournament was held on Sunday, April 25, at the Town and Country Inn in Gorham, N.H.

Eighteen pairs have bid and played since early October and up until the final card was played on Sunday the final standings were in doubt. However, Rich Grover, once again proved he was the best by winning first place with a total score of 67,580 points. In second place was Al Barth, followed closely by Bob Crane in third and Wilder Kimball in fourth. Sue Crane finished fifth, Wendie Gray sixth, Mary Grover seventh, Pearl McMillin eighth, Dan Grover ninth, and Verna Thayer rounded out the top 10.

Rose Dyer won the "glad you came" prize, Al Barth won the individual high, with a score of 6,860 and Mona Lowe had the individual low of 670.

The next session of round robin bridge will begin in late September. Teams play every two weeks or whenever it is convenient. Times and dates are set by the host team at the convenience of both teams. A total of 24 hands are played each time, six with a partner, six with an opponent, six with other opponent, and a final six with a partner. Scores are tallied and called in to Pearl McMillin, who keeps a running total for each person. The final round is always held on a Sunday afternoon, with dinner following play.

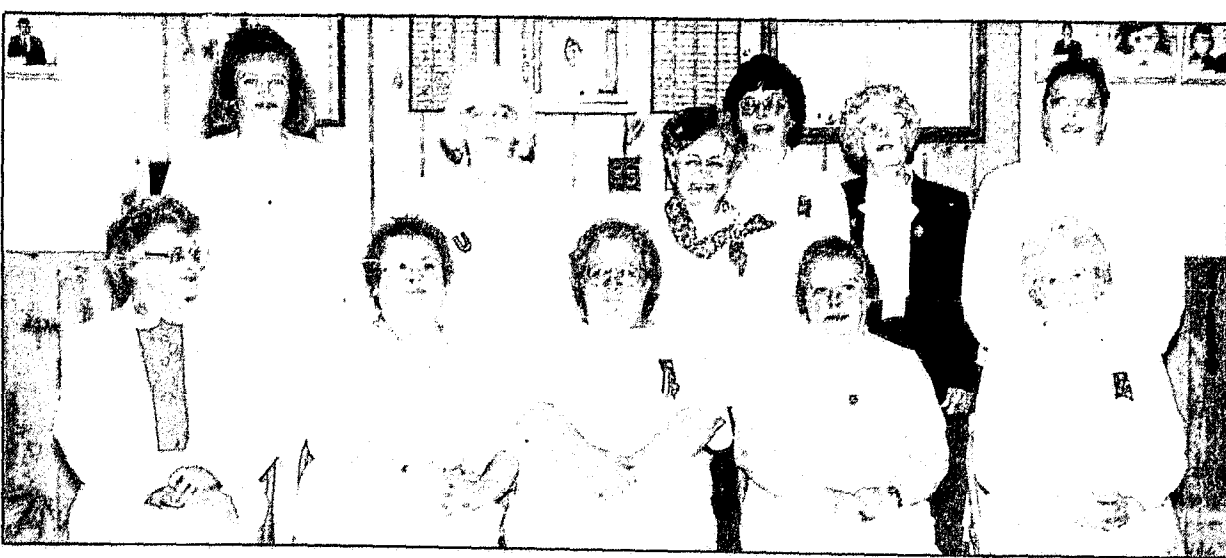

If anyone is interested in participating in the 1993-94 season they should get a partner and call Joan Putnam at 824-3272, Marna McGinnis at 824-3728, Wendie Gray at 824-3321, or Nancy Schlieper at 824-2379.

CARD OF THANKS

We cannot thank everyone enough for the incredible amount of support and caring that was shown to all of us during our beloved John's brief illness and after his death. From Dr. Ware, Dr. Storey, the Oxford Hills Medical Team, the Stephen's Memorial Hospital staff, Rev. Robert Rainville, music leader Tim Cormier and our Praise Assembly Of God family; Rev. John Grant and the Bethel Nazarene Church; Rev. John Ludlam; Ann Roy at the Bethel Alliance Church, and a countrywide network of praying believers, the Greenleaf Funeral Home staff, on down to those who did numerous acts of kindness and all those who sent flowers, donations, food and cards to us and prayers heaven word, for the hug and the pat that said "I Care", the word assures you that your deeds will not go unnoticed for if you do it unto the least of the brethren it will be considered as done unto our Lord Jesus Christ. In a world constantly being shaken by hatred and violence it is comforting to know there are still kind, compassionate, helpful people ready to give of themselves. We love you all.
